

Therese Ford, a member of the Kia Eke Panuku team, shares two strategies from the Best Evidence Synthesis Exemplars: Reciprocal Teaching (BES Exemplar 4) and Learning Logs (BES Exemplar 5).

Like all the BES Exemplars they “illuminate[s] highly effective teaching approaches that accelerate progress for diverse (all) learners in areas where improvement is needed. They exemplify the eleven dimensions of quality teaching using examples that come from across the curriculum and are relevant to primary, intermediate, and secondary levels of schooling” (BES website).

Both exemplars can be downloaded from the BES website <https://www.educationcounts.govt.nz/topics/bes/resources/bes-exemplars>.
